At our January 29th meeting, Mary Riemersma gave a comprehensive summary of the legislative high points of the last year, including information on the LPCC license. See CAMFT articles on legislative highlights and LPCC information in this newsletter. Following Mary's presentation which alerted us to some changes on the horizon that could impact therapists negatively, we may be adding a regular column in the newsletter to address these issues and concerns.

QUOTABLE QUOTE

Can you guess who said this?

Age is strictly a case of mind over matter. If you don't mind, it doesn't matter.

Answer for January's Quotable Quote:

A theoretical physicist's version of “I'm Rubber, You're Glue” delivered by Sheldon Cooper, everybody's favorite and likeable, albeit socially inept, character played to perfection by Jim Parsons on The Big Bang Theory on CBS. If you haven't seen this yet, you must! Asperger would be pleased.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

President's Message, February 2010

This year has just started, yet it already feels like we are on fast-forward. It seems too soon to be thinking about a new IE-CAMFT Board, but in April we will be voting in new people to run our chapter. I would like to invite everyone to consider some kind of board or committee involvement. Every member is welcome to attend chapter meetings which follow the presentations at our regular monthly meetings. There are positions on the board that are open currently and there will be positions opening up on our 2010-2011 board, as well as on various committees. We have jobs that are small and others that require more time, we even job share! I personally find it very rewarding to volunteer with IE-CAMFT; it is my professional boost every month. Feel free to speak with any board member regarding available positions and consider volunteering to help our chapter thrive.

Sincerely,

Ruth Dusenberry, LMFT
IE-CAMFT Board President

A Note from the Editor:

SUBMISSIONS FOR ARTICLES, LETTERS TO THE EDITOR ARE VERY WELCOME!!

It is possible to have a lot of exposure for your presentation topic and hence, your practice, if you take advantage of our invitation to write an article to go in the month prior to your presentation, give your presentation the next month (a preview will appear the same month that includes your bio and the objectives of the seminar), and follow this up with a summary of your presentation for the month after that. Three consecutive months of free advertising for your practice!

Member Editorials and Articles represent the opinions and ideas of the author and do not represent IE-CAMFT or CAMFT. Submissions will be corrected for grammatical errors and may be edited for space utilization and readability.

Email submissions to IE CAMFT Editor at: therapist@carolabouldinmft.com.

Update on Paying for Supervision

On January 23, 2010, the Board of Behavioral Sciences (“BBS”) met in Sacramento. Discussed during the meeting was the issue of “paying for supervision.” Unfortunately, the BBS scheduled this very important item late on their agenda; therefore discussion was cut short. Since that meeting, the Executive Officer of the BBS has committed to schedule another meeting where this matter will be a key topic of discussion.

During the discussion, the BBS counsel reiterated his interpretation of the Labor Code indicating that: “employed” interns/trainees/associates may not pay their employers for supervision. His opinion is that volunteers are not employees and may pay for supervision. His opinion was also that it continues to be lawful to pay for “offsite supervision” that is not provided by the employer. Further, the BBS indicated that there would be no intent on their part to enforce the interpretation that paying one’s employer for supervision is unlawful unless they received a specific complaint. In other words, an intern paying an employer for supervision would not result in the loss of hours of experience for the intern. The BBS further concluded, based upon counsel’s recommendation, that the issue of “paying for supervision” did not fall under their jurisdiction, and the matter should be addressed with the Department of Industrial Relations, Division of Labor Standards Enforcement (DIR).

During this limited discussion CAMFT disagreed with the BBS’s interpretation of law and their contention that this issue falls outside of the purview of the BBS. We argue that the supervisee/supervisor relationship as we know it in the mental health disciplines is different than the typical employee/employer relationship where supervision is oversight to serve the interests of the employer. Supervision as we know it for interns/trainees/associates is provided for the benefit of the person being supervised and is intended as a training experience as required by the licensing law. It is a condition of the supervisee getting the requisite experience to qualify for a license that he or she will gain. The employer has no direct gain from the intensity of this type of supervision.

James Maynard, Counsel to the BBS, cites various Labor Code Sections to make his case against employers being able to collect for supervision. Our reading of one of the sections cited appears to say that it is unlawful when an employer makes a deduction from an employee’s wages for certain things (which would be the case with supervision). This same section of law, however, makes an exception when there is a “wage agreement” that is expressly authorized in writing by the employee. We argue that if the employee agrees in advance, in writing, to authorize a deduction from his or her wages, a deduction for supervision could be considered lawful.

It is interesting to note that if the issue of paying for supervision is beyond the jurisdiction of the BBS, it was BBS-sponsored legislation that removed, just a few years ago, the explicit prohibition against paying for supervision in a private practice.

We will continue to pursue the matter with the BBS. We likewise plan to pursue the matter with the DIR and may involve others in this process. Depending upon the results of these efforts, we may pursue legislation to address the problem. Unfortunately, any legislative strategy this year is foreclosed due to timing, unless the BBS agrees to put it into a non-controversial committee bill.

CAMFT understands the immense frustration and confusion felt by interns, trainees, associates, supervisors, employers, and agencies, however, please know that CAMFT is attempting to interpret and advise on this situation as quickly and efficiently as possible. As CAMFT achieves this goal, we are cognizant of the need to protect interns/trainees/associates from some employers who may be predatory while assuring that there are an adequate number of settings to gain qualifying supervised experience.

For more information or to address your specific situation, call CAMFT at 888-892-2638, and ask to speak to an attorney or the Executive Director. Please phone us as these issues are difficult to adequately address by e-mail.

Law & Ethics

By Ruth Dusenberry, LMFT

We will once again be hosting our annual Law and Ethics workshop on February 26, 2010. We were able to keep the registration costs the same as last year and have added the option to pay for the workshop on-line at our website: www.ie-camft.org. I look forward to seeing you there. (See flyer in this newsletter for registration information).

GoLightly—New Social Networking Media for Members

The Board discussed the new social networking media (GoLightly) that will be rolled out to members this spring. This media will replace the listserves and provide much greater versatility for member dialogue. Members will be able to include pictures with their exchanges to make interactions more human. Members will also be able to take their conversations in various directions based on degree of interest and personal focus. It may also offer opportunities for members to learn more about candidates for the Board prior to voting.

Board Member Commitments

CAMFT Board Members make commitments to be present with one or more CAMFT Chapters. Board Members may attend one or more Chapter Meetings, make presentations at Chapter Meetings, or assist with guidance to help a struggling chapter re-create itself. Board Members also make commitments to contact state and federal legislators. And, Board Members commit to identifying and encouraging strong candidates to run for the CAMFT Board of Directors. Board Members also commit to contributing to CAMFT's state and federal political action funds.

Filling of Board Vacancy

The vacancy on the CAMFT Board resulting from the resignation of Patrick Healy was filled by an existing Board Member as is required by the Bylaws. Patricia Teague fills this vacancy for the remainder of the Board year—until May 31, 2010. The remaining vacancy on the Board was filled by J.M. Evosevich, a prior CAMFT Board Member and President. This term will likewise end May 31, 2010.

Filling of Vacancy on Ethics Committee

The vacancy on the CAMFT Ethics Committee created by the resignation of Jim Walt will be filled by Mary Ellen Edwards McTamaney. Jim resigned due to competing demands for his time. Mary Ellen is a prior Board Member and President of CAMFT.

Meeting with Representatives of the California Coalition for Counselor Licensure

The CAMFT Board met and dialogued with representatives of the California Coalition for Counselor Licensure, the proponents of the legislation to license LPCCs in California, to discuss common purposes and possible activities for cooperation and collaboration.

Funding Streams for Grants for Diversity and Inclusiveness

The Board directed CAMFT staff to look into how California MFTs can be eligible for minority fellowship grants through SAMHSA.

Sierra Foothills Chapter

The Board approved the charter of the Sierra Foothills Chapter of CAMFT.

Collaboration with the International Association of Marriage and Family Counselors

Board Members previously met with and discussed a proposal to develop a collaborative relationship with the International Association of Marriage and Family Counselors, a division of the American Counseling Association. The CAMFT Board agreed to develop a mutually supportive relationship that would, among other things, make IAMFC's peer-reviewed Family Journal available to CAMFT members and permit CAMFT members to submit articles for consideration to IAMFC's scholarly journal. The relationship would provide international exposure for CAMFT members, access to IAMFC's acclaimed video product line and training opportunities, as well as permit CAMFT members to avail themselves of their Family Therapy Certification. It may also lead to our discussions about ways to mutually support students in CACREP accredited programs in California.

Declaration of the Association of Family and Conciliation Courts, California Chapter

The CAMFT Board agreed that CAMFT would be a signer on a Resolution declaring a public health crisis in the State of California with regard to child custody proceedings and the state's failure to devote adequate resources to the needs of children in the family court system.

Social Activism Survey Results

Insights Worldwide Research, the firm who conducted the social activism survey, presented the results to the CAMFT Board. The Executive Summary and comments from the presenter will be distributed to CAMFT members. The results of the survey, exclusive of verbatim responses, will be available on the CAMFT website for member review. This issue will be on the Board's next agenda to determine how the recommendations are to be implemented. These results will also be available to Board Members at each meeting and at the Strategic Planning Meeting that will occur in the Fall.

Amicus Brief in Support of Perry v. Schwarzenegger

The CAMFT Board directed staff to review and sign an Amicus Brief in support of Perry v. Schwarzenegger, if it is determined that the brief is consistent with the CAMFT Marriage and Family Inclusion Statement and appropriately written and supported.

End of Year Finances of CAMFT

CAMFT was able to end the year in the black in spite of some loss of membership, the recession, and a decline in investment earnings.

CAMFT Membership as of November 30, 2009—29,600

The most common reasons for member terminations are financial or therapists are not practicing. Ninety-two percent of those who terminate believe the Association's services are excellent or at least good. One hundred percent believe The Therapist is highly informative or at least of some value. Eighty-eight percent believe the Association is working for the profession as it should.

Articles in The Therapist

The Therapist is to seek articles from members on their success stories or their mistakes that have turned into valuable learning experiences.

CAMFT Certified Supervisors

There are currently 307 CAMFT Certified Supervisors.

CAMFT Website Utilization

Any member interested in the report on utilization of the CAMFT website can request it from CAMFT by writing to infocenter@camft.org.

CAMFT Board Candidates

Nine persons appeared before the CAMFT Nominating Committee for consideration. The Committee selected five candidates from this number. Four of the candidates were from Northern California and five were from Southern California, four were female and five were male, three candidates were incumbents. Three candidates were deemed not ready and were not offered positions, one candidate declined to take the position offered.

While the CAMFT Board would like to see contested elections and believes it is the preferred situation, they recognize that it is not consistently possible if a Nominating Committee believes some candidates need more exposure to CAMFT and Board service before serving on the CAMFT Board. The CAMFT Board, in these situations, must support the process, wisdom, and decisions of the Nominating Committee.

LPCC Track for Pre-Licensed MFTs

In 2009, the Licensed Professional Clinical Counselor licensure law was passed and signed here in California. For already licensed MFTs, grandparenting is available from January 1, 2011 through June 30, 2011. For interns who expect to be licensed before June 30, 2011, they too will have the option to apply for LPCC grandparenting. However, pre-licensed members who wish to obtain their LPCC license, and who are already in the pipeline (but will not be licensed by June 30, 2011) will need to adhere to specific education and experience requirements, as well as take the required licensing examinations.

For those who are outside of the grandparenting timeframe, the required education and experience is reviewed below. However, the specific regulations still need to be drafted by the Board of Behavioral Sciences. For example, can you count any and all supervised hours of experience towards both LPCC and MFT licensure? Will the BBS require national and/or state-developed examinations? Will the BBS allow more than one course to satisfy a particular required core course content area? These types of questions still need to be addressed through regulation, and we will share that information as the regulations evolve. As to the general education and experience required, please see the summary belowⁱⁱⁱ:
